7 - 9.30 pm	International Women's Day on Friday was a key event for the school again this year, with a host of activities taking place in all year groups to mark the occasion. Students in Year 9 enjoyed a "What's my Line" quiz with women volunteers from an array of professions coming into school and students being tasked to find out what their career is by asking questions and receiving a "yes" or "no" response. I would like to thank these volunteers - who included a biochemist, a doctor, a journalist for the Washington Post, a government policy advisor, actors, a Head of Talent, an infection prevention nurse, a costumier, a vicar and a creative strategist along with other highly successful professional women - for giving up their precious time to come into the school and be part of our celebrations. I would also like to thank Ms Desbenoit and Ms Janes for their hard work in putting the IWD programme together and co-ordinating events. Elsewhere in school students were: researching noteworthy women from all works of life, devising calendars, quizzing, and, in Years 7 and 11, dressing as inspirational women from Malala Yousafzai to Queen Elizabeth. The array of costumes included: Emmaline Pankhurst, Frida Kahlo, Florence Nightingale, Queen Esther, Rosie the Riveter, Emma Watson, Ilhan Omar, Dora the Explorer, Gingo Ogino, Nina Simone, Nadia Comăneci, Marie Curie, inventors and explorers many more. Each student was able to speak about the achievements of the women she had dressed as and what makes her inspirational.

Also Ms Kennedy's Leadership Assembly focused on women and power (with reference to Mary Beard's Manifesto by the same name). You will recall from a previous Greensheet that Mary's Classics tutor at Cambridge was in fact an alumna of WSFG, Joyce Reynolds. Joyce recently celebrated her 100th birthday. Whilst there are more women in positions of power now than previously, for example, women now form 30% of MPs whereas in the 1970s, they formed only 4%, there is still a long way to go before there is a full acceptance of the equality of power. Ms Kennedy described the Ancient Greek tale of Medusa as a symbol of male mastery over women. She illustrated this with images of the snake headed Medusa transposed with the faces of Hilary Clinton, Theresa May and Angela Merkel. We have ordered additional copies for the LRC so students can research this compelling analysis of gender inequality for themselves.

Professor Mary Beard with Joyce Reynolds

On Wednesday Year 9 were in the hall for another day tackling issues around Violence Against Women and Girls (see future Greensheet for a report). Other events this week included taking ninety Year 7 students to the Unicorn Theatre to see Icarus; our junior netball teams winning (and losing) their games and another Art trip to Parasol Gallery. On Friday we had a music trip to the Music for Youth Regional Festival. See pages 14-15 for more information about the fabulous music opportunities open to your daughter organised in school by the Waltham Forest Music Service.

On Thursday, we also hosted school teachers from Italy, Sweden, Austria, Cyprus and Romania. The visitors were extremely impressed by the confidence of our student leaders who spoke about their LORIC mentoring roles, our GREEN values and our use of one to one devices in lessons.

It was lovely to see so many Year 9 parents and their daughters brave the elements for the Year 9 subject evening on Thursday. This is a key time for the students, having recently submitted their KS4 Option choices.

I look forward to seeing the Parents and Carers of Year 8 students for their Subject Parents Evening on Thursday (21st March) between 4.30-7.00pm. Year 8 students should be arranging appointments with their subject tutors on your behalf.

International Women's Day

To celebrate International Women's Day Rachel Sutcliffe and Bukky Olose from Taylor Woodrow visited WSG to talk to our Year 9 students about careers in STEM. Rachel is a civil engineer who is currently working on the White Hart Lane station upgrade in preparation for the welcoming all the football fans to the new Tottenham Hotspur stadium. She delivered a very interesting assembly on the different branches of engineering and the route she took into her current role. Rachel informed us that women only account for 13% of the current workforce. I am sure that this number will continue to increase as more women embark upon professional careers in engineering. There are many career opportunities for women within the different fields of engineering and I know that our students have the problem solving, creative and communication skills to excel in these careers.

NATIONAL APPRENTICESHIP WEEK: 4 - 8 MARCH 2019

National Apprenticeship Week is here, with the theme being 'Blaze a Trail'.

The University of Law (ULaw) Solicitor Apprenticeship Programme has been welcoming apprentices since 2016 and has grown to over 110 apprenticeships nationwide, through our partnerships with employers and apprentices. Apprenticeships can provide a great alternative route to a career as a solicitor – apprentices benefit from a salary whilst studying and no student fees.

Our Solicitor Apprenticeship with LLB (Law Degree) in Legal Practice & Skills combines work-based and online study, together with practical and academic activities at our campuses, to prepare apprentices to undertake the new Solicitors Qualifying Examination Parts 1 and 2. Apprentices who successfully complete these will be able to apply to the Solicitors Regulation Authority (SRA) to be admitted as Solicitors at the end of the programme. Apprentices who successfully complete ULaw assessments, will be awarded an LLB (Hons) Legal Practice and Skills degree.

The next entry for this programme is September 2019, to find out more visit: law.ac.uk/apprenticeships/students/

How can students apply?

All apprenticeship vacancies are created by employers. Students can register with us and we will update them as soon as any of our client employers have a new apprenticeship opportunity, by emailing us at:

apprenticeships@law.ac.uk

All apprenticeship vacancies are also usually advertised on the National Apprenticeship Service website
